John:

John lost their sweater, though it wasn't their favorite one. One day they remembered losing the sweater and wondered if the school has it in their lost and found. They find walking around the school for it a lot of work and shrugs off losing their sweater forever.

Lewis:

Lewis is the parent of a newly accepted RPI student. In the midst of the amazing panels filled with RPI faculty and staff, he lost his wallet in EMPAC. He frantically goes back after realizing it and runs back, only to find it gone. He panics and begins to shut off his card. How can he find his wallet? Did someone take it? Is it in the lost and found? Lewis tries to search up the lost and found locations at RPI only to become more worried and panicked.

How our Website Helps:

Our website gives visitors a clear way of seeing lost and found items at RPI. You can search for the item to see if it was handed to the lost and found. Additionally, with the priority setting, an item like a wallet will be shown immediately on the first page, giving people like Lewis an ease of mind.

Rachel:

Rachel is a faculty member at RPI who constantly forgets their keys in different places. Usually, her colleague usually gets her keys for her. However, a student comes up to Rachel and says she returned it to the lost and found.

George

George is the representative of a law firm at RPI's career fair. They are currently looking for website designers. George happens to leave his favorite notebook at the career fair. After panicking about it, he decides to call RPI to see if they have it in the lost and found. Each phone call makes him more nervous that he'd lose it forever, as no one he called has a clear answer on where the notebook could be.

How our Website Helps:

Our website gives admin a clear way of documenting each lost and found item. It shows the admins when and where an item was found, as well as where it is currently. This helps them better help users like George.
